Many people now realize the importance of pollinators and other essential wildlife. They want to make their yard pollinator-friendly, but don't know where to start. This talk will step you through the process of evaluation, planning, and implementation, with many options for large and small changes.

Heidi Dollard serves on the Steering Committee of the Massachusetts Pollinator Network. She works to educate gardeners and homeowners on how they can support pollinators and other beneficial wildlife, while creating a beautiful and low maintenance landscape. Heidi has a MS in Biology and is a Master Gardener. She has been an enthusiastic native plant gardener for many years.
